Smoking Ills Hit

Is there anyone around today who doesn't know that smoking cigarettes is bad for the health? That cigarettes can make you very sick? That they can kill you?

If so, he or she must be a hermit who has lived for the past 20 years in complete isolation from all others.

The serious and dangerous health results of smoking have been thoroughly aired to the American public for many years. Tobacco smoking shortens life. It is a major cause of lung cancer, heart disease, emphysema and chronic bronchitis. It is associated with other cancers, with increased risk of stroke and other circulatory diseases.

Many Americans have got the message and have quit smoking. American doctors, who see the dire effects of smoking in their patients, have led the field in stopping smoking, and only a small minority of physicians now use tobacco.

This year the American Medical Association is stepping up its long effort to inform the public of the health hazards of smoking and to urge smokers to quit, or nonsmokers not to start.

The smoker knows he or she is damaging his or her health. Smokers may claim a right to pursue their habits, but nonsmokers have at least as much right to clean air, especially in confined places like airplanes, meeting rooms and restaurants.

A person doesn't have to be a smoker himself to suffer ill effects from cigarettes. A nonsmoker in the company of a smoker breathes in smoke from the burning end of the cigarettes as well as the exhaled smoke. Some people have allergic responses to tobacco smoke and may suffer smoke-caused asthma attacks.

Nonsmokers find that tobacco smoke causes eye irritation, nasal symptoms, headache and coughing. Inhaling second-hand smoke increases the heart rate, blood pressure and level of carbon monoxide in the blood. This is particularly dangerous for those with heart and respiratory conditions.

If smoking is a personal right, it carries with it the responsibility of respecting the rights of the nonsmoker too.
